Ungrounded Question and Answer

Question

According to the airline's policy, what assistance is provided when checked baggage is delayed? Include the reporting procedure, delivery timeline, expense reimbursement and compensation conditions.

Ungrounded Answer

When checked baggage is delayed, the passenger should report the missing baggage to the airline's baggage service counter or airport staff. The airline may create a baggage report and begin tracing the baggage.

The baggage may normally be delivered within a specified period, depending on the airline and destination. Passengers may additionally receive reimbursement for essential purchases such as clothing and toiletries while waiting for their baggage.

If the baggage remains missing for a certain period, the airline may treat it as lost and provide compensation according to its baggage policy and applicable aviation regulations.

The exact delivery timeline, reimbursement amount and compensation conditions depend on the airline's policy and applicable regulations.

Observation

This response sounds plausible, but it is not grounded in the specific Air India source as the source document had not yet been supplied. It uses general airline-policy language and does not provide evidence for each claim.

Ungrounded Answer Audit

Claim in Ungrounded Answer	Evidence Available?	Supported or Unsupported?	Risk
Passenger should report delayed baggage to airline staff	General aviation knowledge, but no supplied Air India source	Unsupported in this stage	Medium
Airline creates a baggage report and starts tracing	No source supplied	Unsupported	Medium
Baggage may normally be delivered within a specified period	No specific period provided	Unsupported/Too vague	High
Passenger may receive reimbursement for essential purchases	No source supplied	Unsupported at this stage	High
Baggage may eventually be treated as lost	General statement without supplied evidence	Unsupported	Medium
Compensation depends on airline policy and regulations	No supplied source	Unsupported at this stage	High

Main finding

The ungrounded response contains plausible details but no document-based evidence. The main concern is that a user may mistake a general answer for the actual airline's policy.

Grounding Instructions

The following instruction was provided after supplying the Air India source:

Use only the uploaded document to answer my questions. Do not use general knowledge to fill missing details. For every factual claim, provide the relevant page number, section heading or source passage. If the information is not available in the document, state: "Not found in the supplied document."

Grounded Question and Answer

Question

According to the uploaded policy document, what assistance is provided when checked baggage is delayed? Include the reporting procedure, delivery timeline, expense reimbursement and compensation conditions. Use only the supplied document and cite the relevant section or page for every claim.

Grounded Answer

According to Air India's official baggage details, if checked baggage is delayed, passengers should contact Air India personnel in the arrival hall to report the issue and receive assistance in filing a Property Irregularity Report (PIR). A copy of the report is provided for the passenger's records. (Air India)Air India

Passengers may incur essential expenses while waiting for delayed baggage. Air India states that reimbursement of such expenses may be considered, subject to applicable terms and conditions. The supplied source does not provide a universal reimbursement amount on this page. (Air India)Air India

The supplied source does not provide one fixed delivery timeline. It specifically states that delivery timelines may vary depending on local customs regulations at the destination airport. (Air India)Air India

Air India additionally states that liability for delayed, lost or damaged baggage is subject to applicable laws and international conventions. (Air India)Air India

Ungrounded vs Grounded Comparison

Evaluation Criterion	Ungrounded Answer	Grounded Answer
Source document used	No	Yes
Claims supported by evidence	Limited	Yes, where information exists in source
Citations provided	No	Yes
Policy details invented	Possible	Reduced significantly
Missing information acknowledged	Partially	Yes
Confidence appropriate to evidence	Moderate	More appropriate
Suitable for business use	Requires verification	More suitable after human verification
Human verification required	Yes	Yes

Key difference

The grounded answer is better supported for this task as it is restricted to the supplied Air India source and explicitly identifies details that the source does not provide.

Five-Step Verification

Claim	Source	Match	Context Preserved?	Action
Delayed baggage should be reported to Air India personnel in the arrival hall	Air India, Lost or Damaged Baggage	Yes	Yes	Accepted
A Property Irregularity Report is filed	Air India, Delayed Baggage section	Yes	Yes	Accepted
Essential delayed-baggage expenses may be reimbursed	Air India, Delayed Baggage section	Yes	Yes — “may” and applicable terms are retained	Accepted with conditions
Delivery occurs within a fixed number of hours	No supporting statement in source	No	Not applicable	Rejected / Marked for verification
Delivery timelines can vary because of local	Air India, Delayed Baggage section	Yes	Yes	Accepted

Claim	Source	Match	Context Preserved?	Action
customs regulations
Compensation is automatically guaranteed	Source only says liability is subject to applicable laws/conventions	No	No	Rejected

Verification principle: A claim should not be accepted simply as it sounds reasonable. The actual source must support it.

Citation Check

AI Claim	Citation Provided	Citation Exists?	Citation Supports Claim?	Correction
Passenger should report delayed baggage to Air India personnel	Air India Lost or Damaged Baggage	Yes	Yes	No correction
Passenger can receive reimbursement for essential expenses	Air India Lost or Damaged Baggage	Yes	Partially/Yes	Retain “may be considered” and applicable conditions
Baggage will be delivered within a fixed timeline	No valid supporting citation	No	No	Remove fixed timeline
Delivery timelines may vary because of customs regulations	Air India Lost or Damaged Baggage	Yes	Yes	No correction
Compensation is guaranteed after a particular number of hours	No	No	No	Remove unless supported by another authoritative source

Missing-Information Test

Test Question

What compensation amount will every passenger receive if delayed baggage is not delivered within 12 hours?

Test Question	Information Present in Document?	AI Response	Appropriate?	Required Correction
What compensation amount will every passenger receive if delayed baggage is not delivered within 12 hours?	No	The supplied document does not specify a universal compensation amount after 12 hours. Compensation/liability is subject to applicable laws, international conventions and applicable conditions.	Yes	No correction needed; verify applicable rules for the specific journey if a compensation claim is being made

Finding

The correct grounded behaviour is to acknowledge that the requested details is not available, rather than inventing a fixed compensation amount.

Conditional-Information Test

Question

Does the policy guarantee baggage delivery within a fixed number of hours in every situation?

Answer

No. The supplied Air India source does not establish a universal fixed delivery deadline. It states that delivery timelines for delayed baggage may vary depending on local customs regulations at the destination airport. (Air India)

Source Statement	AI Interpretation	Context Preserved?	Business Risk
Delivery timelines may vary depending on local customs regulations at the destination airport	The delivery time is not guaranteed to be identical in every situation	Yes	Giving passengers a fixed guarantee could create incorrect expectations and customer-service problems

Important observation

The word “may” is key. Changing a conditional statement into a guarantee would change the meaning of the policy.

Grounded Passenger Response

Using only the supported information from the Air India source:

Dear Passenger,

We understand the inconvenience caused by delayed baggage. If your checked baggage has not arrived, please report the issue to Air India personnel in the arrival hall. They will assist you with filing a Property Irregularity Report (PIR), and you will receive a copy for your records.

Essential expenses incurred while waiting for delayed baggage may be considered for reimbursement, subject to applicable terms and conditions. Delivery timelines may vary depending on local customs regulations at the destination airport.

For any compensation or liability-related claim, the applicable laws, international conventions and airline conditions should be checked.

[VERIFY AIRLINE POLICY] for any specific reimbursement or compensation amount not stated in the supplied source.

Review

Review Area	Result
Accuracy	Supported by source
Tone	Professional and passenger-friendly
Compliance	Avoids unsupported promises
Context	Conditions are preserved
Citation quality	Based on official Air India source
Privacy	No personal passenger information included
Appropriate uncertainty	Yes

Second RAG Scenario

Scenario Selected: Flight Disruption / Delay

Source

Air India's official Flight Disruption page was used as a second public source. It explains the availability of a Flight Disruption Statement for eligible Air India-operated delayed, cancelled and diverted flights. (Air India)

Air India — Flight Disruption Management and Assistance

Ungrounded Question

What document can an Air India passenger obtain as proof of a delayed flight for an insurance claim?

Ungrounded Answer

A passenger can request an official flight-delay certificate or disruption statement from the airline to prove that the flight was delayed. The document can then be submitted to an insurance company if needed.

Ungrounded Observation

The answer is plausible but was generated without the supplied source. It does not establish the exact eligibility conditions or timing.

Grounded Question

According to the supplied Air India source, what document can an eligible passenger obtain after an Air India flight is delayed, and what can it be used for?

Grounded Answer

Air India states that eligible passengers can obtain a Flight Disruption Statement for disrupted Air India-operated flights. The statement can serve as documentary evidence when filing an insurance claim. The page states that the statement is available for delayed, cancelled and diverted flights and can be requested 24 hours after the flight arrival. (Air India)

Comparison

Criterion	Ungrounded	Grounded
Source used	No	Yes
Exact document name	General description	Flight Disruption Statement
Eligibility conditions	Not established	Included
Timing requirement	Not established	24 hours after arrival
Insurance use	General	Supported by source
Human verification	Required	Still required

RAG Risk Audit

Risk	Present?	Evidence	Mitigation
Outdated source	Possible	Web information can change	Check official source

Risk	Present?	Evidence	Mitigation
			date/current version
Unauthorised document	No	Public Air India source used	Use official/public sources
Missing information	Yes	Fixed compensation amount not given on selected page	State “Not found” instead of guessing
Incorrect retrieval	Possible	AI may retrieve an unrelated passage	Check source passage manually
Weak citation	Possible	A citation may not support the exact claim	Perform citation check
Lost context	Possible	Conditions such as “may” can be omitted	Compare AI wording with source
Unsupported claim	Yes in ungrounded answer	General assumptions were used	Require source evidence
Sensitive information	No	Public information only	Do not upload passenger or employee data
Excessive confidence	Possible	AI can present assumptions confidently	Use appropriate uncertainty
Missing human approval	Yes	AI is not the final policy authority	Escalate uncertain cases to authorised airline staff

My Reflection

1. What is Retrieval-Augmented Generation?

Retrieval-Augmented Generation, or RAG, is a method in which an AI system retrieves relevant details from a supplied source and then uses that information to generate an answer. It helps the AI answer questions using specific documents instead of depending only on general model knowledge.

2. What is the difference between an ungrounded and grounded answer?

An ungrounded answer is generated without providing the specific source document. A grounded answer uses details retrieved from a supplied source and can be checked against that source.

3. Did the AI invent information before the document was uploaded?

The ungrounded answer included general statements about baggage reporting, reimbursement and compensation without evidence from the selected Air India source. Therefore, some claims could not be verified at that stage.

4. Did the grounded answer contain valid citations?

Yes. The grounded answer was checked against the official Air India source. The claims about reporting delayed baggage, filing a PIR, possible reimbursement of essential expenses and variable delivery timelines are supported by the source. (Air India)

5. What does “claim–source match” mean?

Claim–source match means checking whether the exact details stated by the AI is actually supported by the cited source.

6. Why must the context surrounding a claim be checked?

Context is key as removing conditions or exceptions can change the meaning of a policy. For instance, saying that expenses “will be reimbursed” is different from saying that they “may be considered” subject to applicable terms.

7. What happened when you asked a question not covered by the document?

The correct grounded response was to state that the requested details was not available in the supplied document rather than inventing an answer.

8. Why does RAG not guarantee truth?

RAG only helps the AI access supplied details. If the source is outdated, incorrect, incomplete or poorly interpreted, the resulting answer can still be incorrect.

9. When should an answer be escalated to an authorised person?

An answer should be escalated when the source does not provide the needed details, when the claim has significant financial or operational consequences, when there is uncertainty about a policy condition, or when an official decision or approval is required.

10. How could RAG support aviation-management work?

RAG could help aviation managers quickly retrieve details from approved policies, procedures, passenger-service documents and operational manuals. It could support customer-service responses, policy research, report preparation and document-based decision support while still requiring human verification.
